

Where will you go? To Weimar, Jena, the big city, which has much good on both ends. (J.W. v. Goethe)

Social Work in an European Perspective

9th International University Week

April 23rd – 27th 2007

University of Applied Sciences, School of Social Work, Jena (Germany)

Organisational notes

The organization team of the School of Social Work, University of Applied Sciences Jena, friendly invites international students from all European countries as well as university teachers to participate within the International University Week 2007 in Jena. We especially call for participation of Universities within our Socrates network, however, would like to encourage individuals, students as well as lectures from other institutions and academies to participate. Students are asked to present their universities (posters, brochures and short performances are welcome) within the opening session and the social activities. Lecturers are invited to contribute to the program and to (co)host a workshop or give a presentation.

The program is organised together with students and colleagues of the School of Social work in Jena and their Socrates partners as well as speakers of the relevant institutions. The congress language is English. Foreign guests and their hosts will form an international study group. In regard to some excursions or workshops there might be limitations in the number of participants.

The International Week in organised within a friends-visiting-friends approach, that means visiting students from all international partners are hosted by fellow students. Due to organisational restraints we are going for a maximum of 50 student participants from abroad. The congress fee is only 50€/per person. Bed & breakfast for students, welcome and farewell dinner, barbeque party as well as excursions are included. For lecturers (and other non students participants) we will arrange reasonable accommodation in hotels on extra costs (max. 50€/p.p./p.n.) in Jena. On an individual basis it might be possible to arrange private accommodation by fellow colleagues if required. Travel and hotel expenses must be covered by the participants or the sending university. All participants of the IUW in Jena will receive an email/contact address of their host in order to make individual arrangements (e.g. time of arrival, necessity of sleeping bag etc.).

Due to our semester break all participants (students and university teachers) have to register (including the chosen workshop!) between January 15th and until February, 15th 2007! After that date we will give free places to other partners who want to send more students. Early registration will be privileged if places are limited. Please indicate name, gender/age, email-address, phone number and indicate special needs (vegetarian, allergies, handicap, etc.) as well as chosen workshop. To create an international working atmosphere we would like you to motivate your students to visit different workshops. No more than two students of each sending universities will be accepted in the same workshop. Universities are asked to use the (transmitted) registration form for group registration. Unless otherwise agreed there is a limit of 5 students per partner university. However, registration of individuals is possible. We will confirm as early as possible, but not later than March.31st, 2007 via email. Following confirmation the fee (€50.-) has to be paid within 10 days.

Jena is located in the German state Thuringia which is famous for its beautiful landscape and natural setting (esp. the Thuringian Forest) as well as its history. It is the (temporarily) home of Goethe, Schiller, Nietzsche, Hegel, Schopenhauer and others of the “noble classic”. With around 100,000 inhabitants Jena is the largest town in the central Saale valley about 25 km east of Weimar and 50km of the capital Erfurt. Jena lies on the East-West A4 highway running between Frankfurt and Dresden, and is close to the North-South A9 highway running between Berlin and Munich. The next airports are Erfurt and Leipzig/Halle (50 resp. 90km from Jena). Cause of the Jena valley there are two main railway stations, in North-South direction travellers arrive downtown at “Bahnhof Paradies”, in West-East direction you arrive “uptown” at “Bahnhof Jena-West” (see map on our internet site <http://www.sw.fh-jena.de/anfahrt>). Although the University Campus of the UAS is in a walking distance from the stations it is recommended to use the bus (line 10 and 13; busstop Fachhochschule) or a taxi.
